JCBT asked to support rodeo event

Concern is date would conflict with Chautauqua

BY BOB DEMAREE

A proposal to bring a western rodeo to Madison was met with a lot of enthusiasm by the Jefferson County Board of Tourism (JCBT) at its meeting on Monday, but there were concerns over the possible date as Ellie Troutman and Tayler Rinehart asked the board to invest in the event.

The event, to be held in association with the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association, would be scheduled the same weekend as the 2022 Madison Chautauqua Festival of Art, set for Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 24-25. Action on the request was tabled until JCBT's Dec. 20 meeting, but there was considerable support among the members despite the concern on whether Jefferson and surrounding counties have the capacity to handle both Chautauqua and rodeo crowds on the same weekend.

"It's not just a rodeo, it's a festival. It's a big deal. If they can pull it off, I definitely think it's a great program for us to do," said JCBT member Todd Boone.

"This is exciting to us," said Troutman, noting that Rinehart is married to a PRCA cowboy who also participates in the Canadian Professional Rodeo Association (CPRA). "Tayler also raises bucking bulls that made it to the Canadian finals," she said

Troutman herself was a horse trainer for 33 years and was involved with team ropers. "So we bring a lot of experience together along with my fund-raising ability," said Troutman, noting she thinks "we can bring something epic" to the local community.

HDRB recognizes preservation projects

Steinhardts honored for Lifetime Achievement

BY MARK CAMPBELL

Madison's Historic District Review Board (HDRB) recognized several property owners and their preservation projects Monday night by presenting the city's annual awards for preservation achievement for 2021.

The projects ranged from multi-million dollar restoration and repurposes like the Fairfield Inn and Suites by Marriott at the former Eagle Cotton Mill on Vaughn Drive to the Riverside Tower Lofts Apartments at the former Tower Tack Factory as well as recognitions like a lifetime achievement award for ongoing preservation.

Josh Wilber, chairman of the HDRB, said the awards are a way for the city to recognize some of the most impactful historic preservation projects annually and thank those property owners and developers for investing time, effort and money in the city while embracing the mission of HDRB and the city's goals for protecting its historic district.

School of Rock coming to Mad Paddle Brewery

If you've seen the 2003 movie School of Rock starring Jack Black, you know the general story behind the real-life School of Rock (SOR). The movie was based on the first SOR which was founded in Philadelphia, and has since grown to 300 programs around the world.

One of those programs is based in Louisville out of the Guitar Center music store, and I caught up with General Manager Melanie Scofield about the upcoming SOR Showcase at Mad Paddle Brewery on December 11.

"We did this event once before at Mad Paddle over a year ago and it was a huge hit with everybody. We love Madison so much, and all the parents and friends who came over for the show kept telling me we had to get back to Madison again.

"I have to give credit to Jerry Wade of Mad Paddle for his support of our program. As soon as I brought up the idea of doing it at his brewery he was instantly on board and gave us everything we needed to make it work.

"We bring a pretty large crowd wherever we do one of these shows, so I tell everybody to come early, enjoy the town, maybe do some shopping and have a nice meal. Madison is just about the perfect location for this type of event, with everything so close and walkable.

"I should point out that the kids we have coming for this event are what we call our Show Team, which is

RODEO

"It's a social event, it's a community event, it's a sporting event which is always exciting, and it involves family and a lot of patriotism," Troutman added,

Troutman said they were not just looking for a sponsor, but an investment partner "to help us grow this." Initially, Troutman and Rinehart asked for $100,000 from JCBT, but Boone noted that would take most of the $120,000 the board has budgeted for community grants.

"It's just like a budget for your house, you're not going to spend all your money in the first month, and have nothing the rest of the year, so I would have a hard time to sign up and say I'll give the whole budget for one event. But I do want to support it," Boone said, noting he wants to be prudent in what the board can do.

Later in the meeting, Troutman countered with a $50,000 suggestion and the possibility of coming back later for any unrequested or unbudgeted funds.

Boone asked if a plan could be developed in which JCBT gets a small percentage of each admission sold for the event. "That puts more money back in to allow us to do more," he said.

Commissioner David Bramer, president of the JCBT, said he could check with the county attorney to see if that might be feasible.

Troutman and Rinehart are owners of McWhiggins Wonder Emporium, and Boone noted they've proven themselves since the business opened two years ago at 220 West Main Steet. "We trust what you can do," he said. "You've proven to us what you can do in this community."

Troutman promoted the rodeo as an activity residents and visitors could enjoy in the evening during Chautauqua.

"We love Chautauqua," she said. "It's been a mainstay here for years and years. I am a shopper and a spender and a going-to-festivals kind of person. Once Chautauqua closes its doors at 5 p.m., there is very little we offer people to do" with the exception of music opportunities available at local business.

Troutman said they have contacted the Jefferson County Fair Board about reserving the fairgrounds, but that Chautauqua weekend is the only date that works based on the current PRCA schedule.

"Just because we don't think our town can handle the capacity, I don't think we say no," said JCBT member Curtis Chatham.

"I love the event. I think it's amazing what your wanting to do," said Sarah Prasil, executive marketing director for Visit Madison Inc. "I just don't want a negative visitor experience."

VMI President Lucy Dattilo also expressed interest and concern. "We don't have the capacity for two World Series the same weekend. What happens is it's about the customer and the visitor experience," she said. "I think this is a fantastic thing" but wondered if he rodeo could be moved to the weekend before Chautauqua.

Troutman said PRCA is unavailable that previous weekend in 2022, but that could be a possibility in the future.

"The sell is there. I can feel the energy and the buzz with what you guys are saying," JCBT member Trevor Crafton said. "The issue I hear is the date and I think you could split it right down the middle. If people come in and everything is booked, then that could be a problem. However, when you tell people no, sometimes people want a little more, so I understand that philosophy as well."

Crafton wondered about going ahead and scheduling on the same weekend as Chautauqua in 2022 with the expectation that with a positive outcome the date can be shifted so that "going forward it will not be at Chautauqua's doorstep ... I would like to have it the weekend before Chautauqua. I think that would be a sweet spot."

Another issue raised by Crafton is that beer is typically sold at rodeos, and several JCBT board members said they think alcohol sales are not allowed at the fairgrounds. Chatham actually communicated with a fair board member during the meeting who confirmed that alcohol sales are not allowed on fairgrounds.

Rinehart said that while beer is typically sold at the rodeo "it is not a breaking point" that would prevent the rodeo from taking place. However, Boone said lack of alcohol sale could impact the revenue brought in by the event.

Madison City Council member Jim Bartlett, who attended the meeting, said the prospect of the rodeo is exciting but that weekends without other events are hard to come by in Jefferson County.

"Some of the dates may be worrisome, but the reality is that there are so many things going on in Madison and Jefferson County, you're not going to find an empty weekend," Bartlett said. "So I don't think we can let something that seems like a very solid opportunity go away because of the date for one year."

Madison City Council member Katie Rampy, also in attendance, agreed, "It's something new that hasn't been tried before. We need new things for sure, so I'm pretty excited about the opportunity. Again, I'm also concerned about the weekend mix, but nothing ventured, nothing gained."

Prasil agreed that adding a rodeo could bring great opportunity. "When you have a new event, you can't give it one year to decide if it worked," Prasil said. "You have to give it three years at least, so maybe this is a way to tease people" by having it Chautauqua weekend in 2022, and continuing onto even greater things after that.

Board member Nancy Crisp said hotels are always seeking ways to put guests in their rooms on days when there are fewer activities to draw visitors. "They want things to put people in their rooms" on weekdays and the weekends when there aren't events, she said.

As the meeting wound down, Dattilo noted, "Never in my wildest years — I've been involved in tourism for some shape or form for 20 years — I would ever think a major event would be placed on Chautauqua weekend. I'm trying to wrap my brain around it. I think it's a great thing. It's just the wrong date. We're sold out (of hotel rooms) and we're sold out two counties out."

"There's another piece here that you have to consider," said Bartlett. "If the rodeo channel is carrying this event, then nationwide there's marketing it's going to give Madison and Jefferson County that this group would never venture into."

worked in the city's historic district, a respect and love for Madison's historic buildings came naturally as did the desire to preserve the historic district.

While the Steinhardts represent a born and raised love of Madison's historic district, many of the other award winners are transplants who landed in a community that grew on them and discovered buildings they wanted to preserve.

Ron Bateman, head of the Riverton LLC investment and development group that bought and resurrected the former Eagle Cotton Mill as a Fairfield Inn, is such a transplant retiring to Madison and then involving his partners to save the former industrial site from years of decay and turn it into a boutique hotel overlooking the Ohio River. The 85-room, $22 million project, completed earlier this year, was awarded the HDBR's Commercial Award.

Meanwhile, the HDBR recognized the Riverside Tower Lofts Apartments as the Best Rehabilitation Project in the Historic District after the Denton Floyd Real Estate Group invested millions to renovate the former tack factory into an apartment complex with 42 one-bedroom apartments and eight two-bedroom units for residents 55 years and older.

Wilber noted that the project faced special complications in the fact that soil contaminated by chemical leaks required a great deal of cleanup prior to renovation and construction but the finished product is not only an asset in terms of aesthetics, repurposed preservation and senior housing but makes for a safer city for neighbors now that the contamination is removed.

Other award winners included:

— Best Residential Award to John and Linda DeLuca for their renovation and restoration of their home at 210 West Second Street.

— Gold Standard Award to Ronald and Barbara Frazee for their work to salvage and renovate the Hitz House located at 829 West Main Street after the business and apartments were gutted by fire in 2020.

— Best New Infill Award to developer Betty Sexton and contractor Brian Martin for their work to plan and build four single family homes in the 800 block of West First Street in downtown Madison. Although, modern and non-contributing to the historic district, Wilber said the design and appearance of the homes is aesthetically pleasing and fits in well with the surrounding historic neighborhoods.

and Trimble County had one more to make its overall count 1,306. Death totals remain the same in both counties — Carroll at 30 and Trimble at 21 while Carroll's positivity rate is 11.38% and Trimble's is 8.26% with both county's in the "Red" metric for high spread.

The State of Indiana reported 3,200 new positive cases of COVID-19, meaning 1,080,505 Hoosiers have now been infected during the pandemic. Indiana also reported 51 additional deaths, increasing the overall death toll to 16,788.

In Kentucky, there were 822 new positive cases for an overall total of 773,602. There were 44 additional deaths for an overall total of 10,707.

On Monday, Kentucky Gov. Andy Beshear encouraged everyone to get vaccinated for COVID-19 in order to protect fellow family and community members this Thanksgiving holiday.

"If everybody's vaccinated for Thanksgiving dinner, you are the safest that you've been at a holiday since the beginning of the pandemic," Beshear said at a virtual news briefing.

People should also make sure to stay home and avoid holiday gatherings if they feel sick, Beshear said. Those who are unvaccinated or have not yet had a booster should make sure to wear a masks while indoors and gatherings should also be small.

Adults living and working in Kentucky are eligible for a booster shot six months after their second dose of the Moderna or Pfizer COVID-19 vaccines, or two months after a single-dose Johnson & Johnson COVID-19 vaccine.

Roughly 500,000 Kentuckians have gotten a booster.

Beshear's recommendations come as Kentucky reports a slight increase in cases. For instance, the number of cases reported on Saturday and Sunday was the highest increase in the last four weeks.

Some 809 Kentuckians are currently hospitalized, up 90 from last Monday.

"With hospitalizations going up, it ought to tell everybody that we need to be really careful on Thanksgiving this week, as well as Christmas coming up," Beshear said.

Requests for monoclonal antibody treatments has also increased, Beshear added. That was yet another possible indicator of another surge in coronavirus cases, fueled by the highly transmissible delta variant.

Eight out of 10 hospital regions in Kentucky have intensive care unit capacity at 80% or more. Only 198 ICU beds are available throughout the entire state, according to state reports.

Still, the number of hospitals experiencing staffing shortages has dipped below 30, the lowest amount in a while, Beshear reported.

According to state data, 59% of the total state population has received at least one dose of a COVID-19 vaccine, below the national average.

400th anniversary of Thanksgiving

Holiday has long been pause to appreciate what we do have in difficult times

BY BOB DEMAREE

From the beginnings of Thanksgiving to what's being celebrated this year on the 400th anniversary, the holiday is a pause to consider all for which you are thankful — even when times are difficult.

Thanksgiving began as the story of the Mayflower, the English ship that transported a group of English families known today as Pilgrims, to the New World on a grueling 10-week voyage at sea that reached what was to become America on Nov. 21, 1620.

There were 102 passengers on the Mayflower along with a crew of about 30. They were ill-prepared for the bitter winter weather they encountered and their predicament was amplified by an outbreak of a contagious disease for passengers remaining onboard the Mayflower for the winter. In the end, the battle for survival saw only 53 passengers make it — just over half — with half the crew succumbing as well.

But what followed was a good harvest and the feast to mark that first harvest of the Mayflower settlers became the first Thanksgiving in 1621.

Through the years there have been crop successes and failures as well as revolutionary, civil and world wars and now two pandemics but America has flourished.

In 1918 as Thanksgiving approached locally, there was cause for both celebration and dismay. On the day after Thanksgiving in 1918, the headline in The Madison Courier, noted that "Victory is the Thanksgiving Gift," in reference to the fact that the hostilities of World War I had formally ended earlier that month.

"Victory, won by the American soldiers in hard fighting and at the cost of great sacrifices, was the Thanksgiving day gift to the American nation and the American army, General Persing declared in a Thanksgiving day address at general headquarters today," the Associated Press reported in the Courier.

But, even as residents celebrated the end of a war, there was another concern brewing throughout the United States — the Great influenza pandemic known as the Spanish Flu.

The pandemic which was conventionally marked as having begun in the United States in March of 1918 with the first documented case in Kansas, resulted in what the CDC records as 675,000 deaths. Meanwhile, the number of deaths worldwide from that pandemic was about 50 million.

With Dr. George E. Denny, secretary of the county health board, reporting 205 cases of influenza in the county outside of Madison, a ban was placed on schools and churches because "influenza has become prevalent in the county," it was reported in the Nov. 21, 1918, edition of the Courier.

In the same newspaper, it was announced that Lewis S. Johnson, postmaster of the Dupont Post Office, had died after having influenza for just a few days.

As Thanksgiving approached in 1918, the Courier received reports from Dr. Denny about increasing numbers of cases. In the Nov. 25 edition, it reported 100 new cases of the influenza in the county. On Nov. 27, he reported 133 new cases (44 in Madison), and on Nov. 29, there were 127 new cases (51 in Madison).

On Dec. 2, it was reported that 48 influenza patients were being cared for at the Red Cross hospital at the Elks building, which put it near limits with room for just a few more patients. The article stated, "If it becomes necessary to procure another building for hospital purposes, arrangements have been made with Mayor (James) White for the use of the auditorium in the city hall."

Still, even as the flu spread in Jefferson County, there were successful efforts to contain it. In a document written by Will Werner-Wilson, it states that the virus claimed just 26 lives from a population of 6,934 in Madison.

There were efforts early on to contain the spread even while there was controversy. In the Nov. 25 edition of the Courier, four local ministers appeared before the Board of Health to complain about football being played at Hanover College while county churches were not permitted to have services under the health ban.

There were restrictions on public gatherings and business operating hours with the expectation of "the cooperation of store-keepers and the people of Madison in carrying out the spirit of the closing" and "People are asked not to congregate in stores or remain in them longer than necessary."

There was a ban on public spitting by the city board of health that was endorsed by Mayor James White, who instructed police to arrest persons who spit on sidewalks or public places. In the article, it stated spitting "is a function that can well be reserved for one's backyard or some other out-of-the-way place. It is positively known that public spitting and hawking is a means of transmitting influenza."

Even during those difficult days when people were fearful about their health, the spirit of Thanksgiving continued in 1918. In the Nov. 27 edition of the Courier, it was reported that "a basket of oranges, grapes, lemons and candy was sent to the influenza patients at the Elks hospital today as a Thanksgiving gift from the Second Presbyterian Church."

I feel like a second choice

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Readers: As I'm sure you all know, today is Thanksgiving, a holiday dedicated to celebrating the things we're grateful for. To get in the spirit, I'd love to hear what you are grateful for this year. Send your responses to dearannie@creators.com.

Here's a letter from a reader who got creative when it comes to holiday scheduling:

Dear Annie: I hated Thanksgiving dinner on Thursday since I worked the day before and the day after. My husband suggested we could celebrate Thanksgiving on Saturday instead. That was 45 years ago.

It's worked beautifully, as my daughters have never had to choose where to spend Thanksgiving Day. These days, Thanksgiving Saturday is open to family and loved ones, and it's a joyful celebration. — Thankful

Dear Thankful: Thanks for sharing this tip. I'm sure it will be helpful for other readers who have to work on or around Thanksgiving Day. And for those who do get Thursday off, why not enjoy two celebrations?

Dear Annie: My husband of 50 years had an affair with an old college lover for about a year. Both are in their late 70s. I found out two months ago, by accident, on his text messages and confronted him.

He denied it at first, but after I mentioned to him specifically their intimate email exchanges, he admitted it. The thing that hurts me more is that he told her that he didn't marry me for love but rather for making a family and that she is his soul mate. He said that she is the one he wants to be with but can't because he doesn't want to hurt others. We have two adult children.

After I confronted him, he insisted that he loves me and doesn't want a divorce. He agreed to end the affair but hasn't confirmed to me that he has. He behaves like nothing has happened, and I am kind of going along with that, but it really bothers me and I've been losing sleep over it.

On top of everything, he has not really apologized or owned up to his actions.

Of course, I am devastated and feel betrayed. I think about it all the time.

Should I tell him that I am not well with everything? I am the one who brings it up all the time. He hasn't initiated any conversation about it or clarification. I don't like nagging him all the time, but I can't shake things up and move forward.

I don't really want a divorce, nor do I want to be his second choice. Do I give him an ultimatum? How do I move forward? — Hurt and Confused

Dear Hurt and Confused: What your husband did to you was heartless and cruel. I don't blame you for losing sleep over it.

It is true that sometimes people say things they don't mean. But his actions afterward are telling — not explicitly ending the affair, not communicating with you, and not going above and beyond to repair the damage he did to your relationship.

A couples counselor can help you two move past these communication roadblocks and determine whether this marriage is something you want to save. Start there.

Exclusion from a picture is worth a thousand words

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: My brother has been dating a woman for several years, and they recently became engaged. I do like her, but here is my issue: She is another nationality, and her family (in another country) does not like her dating a "white guy." They refer to him as "white trash," though he is well-educated and makes good money.

She has a very active Facebook page and posts pictures of her dogs, her friends, pictures of herself — not him — from vacations they take together. But not once, ever, has she mentioned my brother or posted a picture of them together. It's as though he does not exist. When I asked her why she excludes him from postings, she says she doesn't want to upset her family.

I do not want to attend this wedding but don't want to offend my brother. Am I wrong to be this upset that his fiancee seems ashamed to publicly acknowledge him? — He Deserves Better

Dear He Deserves Better: It sounds to me like you're a protective sister who only wants what's best for your brother and, ultimately, your family. He is lucky to have someone looking out for him the way you do.

Take your concerns to the one being impacted: your brother. This situation upsets you, but it might not be one of his deal breakers. See what he says when you mention his lack of presence on her social media and ask how that makes him feel. Tell him what it looks like from an outside perspective.

Your brother is likely well aware of his fiancee's family's disapproval and might be OK with being excluded online if it makes real life offline less stressful for him and his fiancee. Hopefully, your future sister-in-law's family will get the chance to spend time with your brother in person down the road and learn his heart and his character through and through. After all, no matter what we share or how often we post online, it'll never tell the whole story of who we are.

Dear Annie: Regarding "Full-Grown Adult," the 38-year-old who left an abusive relationship to move back home with her mother. Perhaps she needs to see that she moved from one abusive controlling relationship right back into another. She likely grew up in a home where there was controlling behavior that led her to choose someone who was also controlling. In an effort to retain control, abuse develops. A way out is to recognize controlling behaviors in others (and ourselves) in order to change ourselves. Not only spouses, but family and friends. A good motivation for her might be that she is allowing her children to learn that this behavior is "normal" as well. Until the pattern is seen, it cannot be changed.

An excellent resource is a book "Stop Controlling Me! What to Do When Someone You Love Has Too Much Power Over You" by Richard J. Stenack Ph.D. She should also get in touch with her local domestic abuse center or by calling the domestic abuse hotline at 800-799-SAFE.

I broke the pattern, and she can, too. Hope this helps. — Concerned

Dear Concerned: Thank you for your valuable perspective. It's true that the mother of "Full-Grown Adult" is showing controlling behavior, and this might be an indicator of further abuse. The resources you suggest will surely be helpful to her and/or to other readers who suffer due to controlling spouses, friends or family members.

Medical groups argue against GOP vaccine mandate limits

BY TOM DAVIES
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Numerous Indiana medical and business groups argued Tuesday against a Republican proposal aimed at ending the statewide COVID-19 public health emergency and forcing broad exemptions from workplace vaccination requirements.

The proposed changes to state law faced criticism during a legislative committee hearing that it wrongly sends a message that the coronavirus pandemic is over at a time when Indiana's infections and hospitalizations are rising again.

Republican House Majority Leader Matt Lehman presented the proposal as a step toward protecting individual rights by allowing workers to claim medical or religious exemptions if their employers required COVID-19 vaccinations.

That proposal includes three administrative actions sought last week by Gov. Eric Holcomb that he said would allow him to end the statewide COVID-19 public health emergency order that's been in place since March 2020, but it goes further amid a national conservative pushback against President Joe Biden's proposed vaccination mandates on large businesses.

Lehman said he believed the Republican-dominated Legislature should act quickly to prevent workers from being fired as Democrats questioned why GOP leaders were trying to force it through with final votes set for Monday — nine days after the proposal was released on Saturday.

Representatives of the Indiana Medical Association, Indiana Hospital Association and other medical groups argued the proposal would discourage attempts to increase the state's COVID vaccination rate and limit hospitalizations and deaths.

Indiana hospitals had about 1,700 COVID-19 patients admitted as of Sunday — a roughly 40% increase from two weeks earlier after declines from a summer surge peak of nearly 2,700 patients in September, according to the state health department.

Despite the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention ranking Indiana's 50.5% rate of fully vaccinated people as the country's 11th lowest vaccination mark, Holcomb disputed arguments that ending the state's public health emergency order would signal that the pandemic's risk had passed.

"I hope it sends the message that if you get vaccinated, the odds of you ending up in the hospital or worse go way down," the Republican governor said Monday.

In the Nov. 24 edition of the Courier, there was an item about John R. Inglis sending postcards with attractive views of Madison to men from Madison and Trimble County who had been serving overseas during World War I. Among them were Boyce Morrow, Everett Ritchie, Robert Sims and Vigil Payne, the article stated. One of them wrote, "I wish to thank you for your remembrance of a lonely boy across the sea and view, which I appreciate and recognize as the southwest corner of Main and Mulberry streets. Any Madison views are very welcome to me as they bring back old memories."

The adverse circumstances of 1918 made it a difficult time period, but there was thankfulness for what people did in kindness and compassion.

Thanksgiving has been celebrated on and off nationally since a proclamation by President George Washington in 1789. President Abraham Lincoln proclaimed a national day of Thanksgiving and Praise in 1983 to help heal the wounds of the Civil War and President Ulysses S. Grant signed into law the Holidays Act in 1870 that made Thanksgiving an annual federal holiday.

However, the holiday wasn't always on the same date. President Franklin D. Roosevelt moved the date up a week between 1939 and 1941 and Congress finally stepped up in 1942 to set the permanent observation on the fourth Thursday of November moving forward.

sort of like an honor band. They are the best of our best. They have to audition for a place in this band, and these are the kids who have made a total life commitment to music.

"These students play numerous shows a year, touring around to other venues and other SORs around the country. The School of Rock also has regular students who take lessons and perform live, plus we have an adult band we call Seriously Casual. But these kids coming to play at Mad Paddle are a cut above.

"People who haven't seen them before are always surprised. I mean, they look just like your average teenagers. But when they pick up a guitar or step up to the mic, they blow people's socks off! Our vocal bench is unbelievably talented. And they are just a blast to watch because every one of them is doing it for the love of it.

"Another fun aspect for adults who may have come up in the 80s or 90s, or even earlier in the 70s, is seeing these young kids discover and embrace some of the classic popular songs from those past decades. You see them really light up when they realize how cool some of the old songs are.

"The show is Saturday, December 11 at 7 p.m. on the main stage at Mad Paddle Brewery. Oh, and I should mention we are opening up the event, kind of like an open mic, for anyone 18 or younger who wants to get up on stage and share a song or two. Or even a full band. We want to encourage youth from all backgrounds and all communities to join in this celebration of music."

HOT TIP OF THE WEEK

After Thanksgiving is over and the leftovers have all been ziplocked and aluminum foiled and Tupperwared, you still have the rest of the weekend to spend with family and friends. One of the best things you can do is introduce them to the special magic of Indiana's Music City. Both Friday and Saturday nights you can park your car in one spot downtown and walk between at least four hoppin' live music venues. The Central Hotel, Mad Paddle Brewery, Red Bicycle Hall and Off Broadway Taproom all have great shows booked for this holiday weekend, and all are within two blocks of each other. Keep an eye on Thomas Family Winery, too, where Steve Thomas is likely to have something going on Saturday night. Gobble up some live music this weekend!

Charlie Rohlfing is a retired advertising man and partner in The Red Bicycle Hall music venue. Look for his distinctive fedora bobbing above the crowd, anywhere live local music is happening.

Dates and hours for The Tour are Nov. 26-27 and Dec. 3-4 with Friday tours running 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. and Saturday tours running 3 p.m. to 9 p.m.

The event was canceled last year due to the COVID-19 pandemic, and this year's event will be held with additional precautions, Kindle said. COVID-19 precautions like masks and sanitization are being followed and she also noted that not all residences are handicap accessible.

"We have some really unique houses on the tour this year," said Kindle. In particular, she noted a former convent at 523 East Third Street located next to St. Michael's Catholic Church. The home, built in the early 1900s, was recently restored and is now the home of Jeff and Kim Kennard.

Another house she highlighted is the extensively renovated Troutman house at 612 West Main Street owned by Randy and Ellie Troutman.

"There are three stories that you will get to see in that home with just amazing decor," she said of the circa 1870 residence with classic revival style front porch, dentilled cornices and Doric columns.

The John Boyd/Pennington home, a federal style built in the 1930s by John Boyd that housed both his family and business as a silversmith and watchmaker, will also be featured. Purchased in 2018 by Seth and Ashley Pennington, a key feature of the home was recovered during a 1994 restoration in which a reverse glass painting completed by Margaret Jane Boyd, the 9-year-old daughter of John and Sarah Boyd, with her signature and "1838" was found between a fireplace mantle and a wall in the west front bedroom. This artwork is now displayed in a shadowbox with a comprehensive history of the home in the owner's parlor area to pay homage to the home's significant history.

The craftsmanship and warmth of the Bellar House, an 1870 shotgun at 836 West Main Street, has a gingerbread appearance from the curb with its decorative detail, classic shutters and garland-strung wrought iron fencing with lights, but perhaps the real treasures lie inside from the fireplaces and mantles to woodwork and trim decorated for the holidays.

The Taylor home now owned by Brandon and Sheri Taylor since 2019 at 730 West Main Street is believed to have been built in the 1850's by steamboat captain Thomas Wright and his wife Eliza Craig Wright. Many prominent residents of Madison have owned the home including Leo J. Yunker, son of Pearl Packing Company owner Augustus Yunker, and James M. and Billie Demaree, who were owners of Demaree Motors.

The Bellar home at 836 West Main Street is a shotgun style house built by local carpenter Edward Gorman Lewis in 1870. The house, owned by Larry and Shari Bellar, has an updated kitchen but has retained many of the original features including the fireplaces, mantles, woodwork and trim.

The Ricketts home at 707 West First Street was built in 2018 by lifetime Madison residents Charlie and Mary Pat Ricketts. The home, which overlooks the Ohio River, was completely designed by Charlie Ricketts with the goal of being a comfortable home that respects and complements the rich history of Madison while providing space for family to visit.

The Jefferson County Historical Society's History Center at 615 West First Street will be decorated through the railroad depot and red caboose. In the past, JCHS has featured a room full of gingerbread houses and a railroad display, but that display has been postponed until next year due to the ongoing COVID-19. However, a limited number of grab-and-go gingerbread houses will be sold for $10.

Hospitality sites include the Lumber Mill Antique Mall at 721 West First Street, Mad Paddle Brewstillery at 301 West Street, Fairfield Inn by Marriott at 108 St. Michael's Avenue and the McWhiggin's Wonder Emporium at 220 West Main Street. Each of the hospitality sites will have refreshments and provide restrooms with the exception of McWhiggin's, which will only offer refreshments. However, directly across the street from McWhiggin's is the city's Comfort Station with restroom facilities at 221 West Main Street.

Tour tickets cost $20 for adults and $5 for children ages 5-12, and may be purchased online at nightsbeforechristmas.com/tickets and picked up at Visit Madison's Visitors Center at 601 West First Street.

Tickets also may be purchased at the Visitors Center during tour hours. Tickets may be used on any of the four nights of the tour. Homes may be toured in any order but cannot be repeated. All tickets are pick-up only at the Visitors Center, 601 West First Street.

Proceeds from the tour benefit Madison's historic sites with a portion also going to Visit Madison Inc. to help cover operational costs for the event. Kindle said there is also an option available allowing visitors to make an extra $5 donation to Madison's historic sites that over the last 20 months have been closed for longer periods due to COVID-19.

"With COVID, there have been struggles in the community with tourism and that's really affected their funding so we're trying to help out as much as we can," she said. Proceeds from those donations will be divided between Historic Madison Inc., Jefferson County Historical Society, Lanier Mansion and the Masonic Schofield House. "Five dollars can go a long way when you have a lot of people making that donation," she noted.

Another companion event held in association with the tour is the "Great Cookie Caper!" in which cookies will be sold at the Visitors Center with each year's proceeds going to a local non-profit organization. That organization this year is Girls, Inc.

JV Turkey Shootout a split decision

Madison & Southwestern each claim wins

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

The junior varsity portion of the annual Turkey Shootout ended up being a split decision with Madison winning the girls game 45-32 and Southwestern running away with the boys win 65-34 Monday in Hanover.

The annual event was canceled last year due to COVID restrictions. The varsity games will be played on Wednesday, also in Hanover.

A look at each game:

MADISON 45, SOUTHWESTERN 32 (Girls) — Madison led the entire game but still didn't pull away until the fourth quarter to post the 45-32 win in the girls part of the junior varsity Turkey Shootout.

After the Cubs jumped out to a 7-0 lead, Southwestern recovered to tie the game 9-9 with 5:41 left in the second quarter on a 3-pointer by Hannah Sampson.

But Madison's Bailey Owens answered that trey with a trey of her own and the Cubs closed the half in a 13-4 run take a 22-13 lead into the lockerroom.

Cam Mann drained a 3-pointer for Madison to open the third to push the lead to 25-13 and the Cubs increased that margin to 30-16 on a Mann three-point play midway through the third.

The Cubs were on the verge of blowing open the game but the rout never happened. Southwestern began chipping away, closing the gap to 35-26 by the end of the third quarter and to within 35-30 on a Jenny Tankersley basket early in the fourth.

Madison then used the free-throw line to keep the Rebels at bay. Lilli Sullivan hit four free throws to put the Cubs back up by nine and, after a Syrenia Hardy made basket, Madison closed the game with six-straight points — two each by Caity Dailey, Mann and Bailey Owens — to finally put the game away.

David Campbell

Madison's Cam Mann (with ball) works her way to the basket during the junior varsity Turkey Shootout on Monday.

Mann paced all scorers with 15 points while Dailey scored 13, Owens had 10 and Sullivan scored seven. The Cubs were 11-for-16 from the foul line and they committed 13 turnovers.

Tankersley had 12 points for Southwestern while Sampson scored six, Riley Scroggins added five, Hardy had four, Breona Brawner and Ximena Vilchis had two each, and Cadence Long had one. The Rebels were 8-of-12 at the free-throw line and had 14 turnovers.

Madison returns to action on Wednesday, Dec. 1 when the Cubs head to Floyd Central. Southwestern's next jayvee game will be on Tuesday, Dec. 7 when the Rebels travel to Milan.

SOUTHWESTERN 65, MADISON 34 (Boys) — Southwestern jumped out to a great start and never looked back, rolling to a 31-point win in the boys' part of the jayvee Turkey Shootout.

Madison hit only three shots from the field over the game's first seven and a half minutes while turning the ball over eight times. Southwestern, meanwhile, spent the first quarter warming up and by the third quarter, the Rebels were humming on offense.

Southwestern led 12-4 after the first quarter then used a 15-0 run in the second to open a 27-6 lead. Madison recovered slightly to stop the bleeding, but the Rebels still took a 31-13 lead into halftime.

The third quarter was where the Rebels blew open the game. Led by sophomore Peyton Cloud, who scored 16 of his game-high 31 points in the seven-minute frame, Southwestern ripped off 24 points to build a 30-point lead. Cloud's off-balance 25-foot 3-pointer at the buzzer gave the Rebels a 55-24 at the end of the quarter.

David Campbell

Southwestern's Peyton Cloud glides into the basket for two of his 31 points in the Rebels' win over Madison in the boys portion of JV Turkey Shootout on Monday.

Southwestern's lead reached as many as 35 (65-30) late in the game before Madison scored the last four points.

Cloud was the only Rebel to score in double figures but the team had eight different players hit the net. Will Stockdale scored nine points, Daylan Konkle had seven points, Jackson Taylor had six points, Landon Kidwell had five, Braiden Smith scored three points, and Claytin Sontag and Aiden Haase scored two each.

James Schafer had eight points to lead Madison, Quincey Reynolds, Baron Welsh and Mason Davis scored five each, Landon True scored four, Gunnar Jones had three points, and Ryder Jones and Damon Hardin scored two each.

Madison turned the ball over 21 times in the game compared to 12 by Southwestern. The Rebels were also 15-for-21 at the foul line while the Cubs were 10-of-15.

Southwestern heads to Clarksville on Tuesday while Madison travels to Jennings County on Friday, Dec. 3

Shawe fades in fourth to fall 43-31 at Borden

BY THE COURIER STAFF

After leading 14-10 at halftime, Shawe girls basketball ran out of steam in the second half of a 43-31 loss at Borden on Monday night.

The Hilltoppers trailed by only two points going into the fourth quarter — that despite being outscored 19-13 in the third period — but Borden outscored Shawe 14-4 in the fourth to pull away for the 12-point win.

"We got into foul trouble and just wore down," Shawe coach Terry King said. "We played some of our best basketball of the year for three quarters."

Freshman Allison Knoebel knocked down four 3-pointers and scored 14 points to lead Shawe. Harlee Hill added five points, Ava Turner scored four, Lina Leatherman and Yolett Perez each had three, and Autumn Lathrem scored two.

Emily Cissell scored a game-high 26 points for Borden (4-2) including five 3-pointers while Paige Robinson added nine points.

The Hilltoppers, now 3-3 on the season, return to action on Friday, Dec. 3, when they host Southwestern as part of a boys-girls doubleheader.

Colts use blowout in Buffalo to prove they're playoff ready

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — The Indianapolis Colts sent a loud, clear message to the NFL on Sunday.

They're tested and playoff ready.

After starting 1-4, the Colts have scrapped their way back into the postseason conversation by winning five of six. And on a windy, rainy day in Buffalo, Indianapolis provided an emphatic answer to critics who questioned its ability to beat a legitimate contender by routing last year's AFC runner-ups 41-15 — their first win in six games against 2020 playoff teams.

Now the playoff talk is no longer just idle chatter.

"If we're going to get where we want to go at the end of the year, we're going to have to put games away in the fourth quarter," running back Jonathan Taylor said after scoring a franchise-record five touchdowns. "We're going to have to put points up. We're going to have to play great defense."

The Colts (6-5) have been fighting their way back by successfully doing both.

Taylor has quickly emerged as the top contender to dethrone two-time defending NFL rushing champ Derrick Henry, who remains out following foot surgery. The Colts' second-year back has topped 100 yards from scrimmage and scored a touchdown in an NFL record-tying eight straight games. Taylor battered the Bills' top-rated defense for 185 yards on 34 carries before a well-deserved early exit.

While Taylor provided the offensive punch, Indy's improving defense took care of the rest.

By forcing four turnovers and limiting Buffalo's high-powered offense to 221 yards and one touchdown through three quarters, the Bills' ground game never got started. It's a script coach Frank Reich, one of the league's top comeback artists, believes in whole-heartedly.

He saw it work when Indy rebounded from a 1-5 start to make the playoffs in 2018, and also when he led Buffalo to the greatest comeback in NFL history against Houston in the playoffs in January 1993.

Bengals halt skid with confidence-building win over Raiders

BY MITCH STACY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — The Cincinnati Bengals lost the first game after the bye week in each of the past five seasons.

That provided a little extra motivation for Sunday's game against the Las Vegas Raiders.

The Bengals (6-4) did enough things right and wore down the slumping Raiders (5-5) in the second half for a 32-13 win that snapped a two-game skid and jump-started their confidence heading into a rigorous seven-game stretch run.

Also worth noting is that the sixth win equaled the combined total in coach Zac Taylor's first two seasons in Cincinnati.

"We just stayed the course," said defensive end Sam Hubbard, who had a sack and recovered Derek Carr's fumble. "We're making progress day by day, game by game."

Knowing they would have to run the ball against the Raiders' strong pass defense, the Bengals gave the ball to Joe Mixon 30 times. He and the offensive line eventually wore down Las Vegas, with Mixon picking up 97 of his 123 yards in the second half. He ran for two touchdowns.

Quarterback Joe Burrow struggled more than usual, completing 20 of 29 pass attempts for 148 yards. His best throw of the day was a 6-yard beauty to rookie wideout Ja'Marr Chase in the back left corner of the end zone that opened up a 22-13 lead for Cincinnati with five minutes left in the game.

Chase, an Offensive Rookie of the Year candidate, leads all first-year players with eight TD catches.

Rookie Evan McPherson became the 13th player in NFL history to kick three field goals of at least 50 yards in a game, including a season-long 54-yarder to tie the score at 3 in the first quarter. His four field goals were the most in a game this season. He's made 11 of 14 attempts.

Gonzaga, UCLA hold down top poll spots ahead of showdown

BY DAVE SKRETTA
AP BASKETBALL WRITER

Gonzaga and UCLA continued their hold on the top two spots in The Associated Press Top 25 college basketball poll on Monday, setting the stage for their highly anticipated showdown this week, while Purdue and Duke barged their way into the top five.

The Bulldogs (4-0) had an easy week with wins over Alcorn State and Bellarmine and received 55 first-place votes from the 61-person medial panel that regularly covers college basketball. The Bruins (4-0) received five first-place votes after blowing out Long Beach State and North Florida last week to head to Las Vegas with some momentum.

Gonzaga played Central Michigan and UCLA faced Bellarmine on Monday night in the Good Sam Empire Classic. Then, the nation's top two teams will square off Tuesday night in a Final Four rematch of a game won by the Bulldogs in overtime.

"It's important for everybody if you want to make the NCAA Tournament," Gonzaga coach Mark Few said. "If you want to accrue a high seed, you have to play really, really good teams. I think it's important for college basketball."

Purdue received the only other first-place vote and leapfrogged Kansas into third in the Top 25 following the Boilermakers' win over then-No. 5 Villanova in the Hall of Fame Tip-Off tournament. The Jayhawks were fourth and the Blue Devils were fifth.

Defending national champion Baylor jumped to sixth after running roughshod over Central Arkansas and Stanford, while the Wildcats dropped only to seventh thanks to beating then-No. 12 Tennessee before losing to Purdue. Texas and Memphis were next, with Kentucky and Alabama in a tie for 10th in the second regular-season poll of the season.

The Wildcats and Crimson Tide were followed by Houston, Arkansas, Illinois and Tennessee at No. 15.

St. Bonaventure solidified its status as this season's early mid-major darling by jumping six spots to No. 16 following wins over Clemson and Marquette. Arizona made the biggest leap into the poll at No. 17 after beating Wichita State and romping past then-No. 4 Michigan in the Roman Main Event, followed by another newcomer to the poll in BYU.

"We got good players," Arizona coach Tommy Lloyd said. "I know we've been out of the limelight; maybe a little bit of that's my fault because I haven't been looking for it. But you know what? We're here now. And we belong."

Auburn and Michigan rounded out the top 20 with Seton Hall, UConn, Florida, USC and Xavier completing the poll.

"This is where we are as a program," said Seton Hall coach Kevin Willard, whose Pirates beat the Wolverines last week for their first win over a top-five nonconference team on the road. "We can play with anybody in the country and we have done that in the last seven years."

CONFERENCE CALL

SEC — 6 (Nos. 10, 10 tie, 13, 15, 19, 23)
Big East — 4 (Nos. 7, 21, 22, 25)
Big 10 — 3 (Nos. 3, 14, 20)
Big 12 — 3 (Nos. 4, 6, 8)
Pac-12 — 3 (Nos. 2, 17, 24)
American — 2 (Nos. 9, 12)
West Coast — 2 (Nos. 1, 18)
ACC — 1 (No. 5)
Atlantic 10 — 1 (No. 16)

UP AND DOWN

Purdue and Baylor moved up three spots within the top 10, and Alabama move up four spots to forge a tie with SEC rival Kentucky. The biggest drop came with Michigan, which was fourth before a pair of losses sent coach Juwan Howard's crew tumbling all the way to No. 20.

"We're going to get better, and I trust we will," said Howard, whose team has another tough test with North Carolina on Dec. 1. "It's part of the game: adversity. Adversity hits, it defines the man, or how he responds the next time."

IN AND OUT

Arizona would have come in at No. 31 last week and debuted in the poll at No. 17 this week, while BYU would have been 29th a week ago and entered the poll at No. 18. Seton Hall would have been 38th a week ago and came in at No. 21, while Xavier gave the poll four newcomers this week.

Oregon went from No. 12 to the first team out. Ohio State, North Carolina and Maryland also fell out.

White helps No. 12 Houston knock off Butler 70-52 in Vegas

BY JOHN MARSHALL
AP BASKETBALL WRITER

LAS VEGAS — Houston did not give Butler an inch in a dominating defensive first half, looking every bit like a team ready to make another deep NCAA Tournament run.

Playing with a big lead, the Cougars backed off a bit and needed time to rev it up again.

A lopsided win, just not as complete as it could have been.

Fabian White Jr. scored 21 points and No. 12 Houston rode a dominating first half to a 70-52 win over Butler Monday in the opening round of the Maui Invitational.

"We're a good defensive team but the challenge is doing it for 40 minutes," coach Kelvin Sampson said. "I felt we let go of the rope a little bit in the second half."

The Cougars (4-0) overwhelmed Butler early, scoring the game's first 17 points while building a 21-point halftime lead. They weren't quite as locked in at either end of the floor to start the second half, allowing the Bulldogs (3-2) to creep back in it before pulling away down the stretch.

Next up for Houston is a spot in Tuesday's semifinals against Wisconsin.

"We won today, but we don't really gloat on it and stay on it," said Houston's Jamal Shead, who had eight points. "Just try to move on and get to the next stage, the next round, and focus on Wisconsin."

Butler had some good moments to start the second half. The rest of it was a bit shaky, thanks to Houston's defense.

Bryce Bolden had 16 points for Butler, which had 20 turnovers that led to 27 Houston points.

"I thought we showed some good fight in the second half that little stretch there, probably eight to 10 minutes where it looked like Butler basketball on both ends of the court," coach Lavall Jordan said. "We've got to figure out a way to get that from the beginning."

Houston lost four key players from last year's Final Four team, including third-team Associated Press All-America guard Quentin Grimes.

Sampson filled the holes with quality transfers to play alongside a solid returning core. The new-look Cougars have shown they can still D it up: They forced 17 turnovers and held Virginia to 47 points in a 20-point win last week.

They made life even more difficult on Butler.

Houston was locked in defensively from the opening tip, with quick hands filling passing lanes and nimble feet rotating bodies in front of Butler ballhandlers.

The Bulldogs had a hard time getting around or shooting over the long-armed Cougars, repeatedly hoisting up contested shots as the shot clock ticked down. Butler needed 6:21 to hit its first basket and trailed 41-20 at halftime.

"Coming out of the gates, obviously the physicality on the defensive end, that set a tone for the game and had us on our heels," Jordan said.

Stewart scores 16 as Indiana runs away from Louisiana-Lafayette 76-44

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BLOOMINGTON — Parker Stewart scored 16 points and Indiana overwhelmed Louisiana-Lafayette in the first half en route to a 76-44 victory on Sunday night.

Stewart made 4 of 5 3-pointers. Freshman Tamar Bates scored 10 points off the bench for the Hoosiers (4-0).

Indiana's preseason All-American Trayce Jackson-Davis, who averages 19.3 points and 10.3 rebounds per game, played 19 minutes and had 11 points and seven rebounds.

Jordan Brown led Louisiana (3-1) with 10 points and Theo Akwuba added nine points and 10 rebounds.

At one point in the first half, Louisiana had made 2 of 29 shots (7%) and trailed 29-4. Indiana led 39-14 at halftime.

The Ragin' Cajuns were outscored only 39-30 in the second half and 27 Indiana turnovers helped keep the game from getting completely out of hand.

For the game, Louisiana shot 19%, made 2 of 20 3-point tries, and just 14 of 24 free throws.

Indiana shot 59% and made 10 of 19 3-pointers along with 10 of 13 free throws.

Indiana will play three games in seven days of their annual Hoosier Classic. They play Jackson State on Tuesday and Marshall on Saturday.

No. 2 UCLA withstands Bellarmine rally, wins 75-62

BY DANNY WEBSTER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

LAS VEGAS — No. 2 UCLA won the game on the scoreboard. Mick Cronin thought it was a loss.

With a heavyweight rematch waiting on the Las Vegas Strip, the Bruins' coach didn't think he got the full 40-minute effort he hoped for from his group.

But UCLA won its fifth straight game to open the season with a 75-62 win against Louisville Bellarmine on Monday Night in the Empire Classic, setting the stage for Tuesday's top-two showdown with No. 1 Gonzaga in a rematch of last season's Final Four.

Gonzaga won 93-90 in overtime on a buzzer-beater from Jalen Suggs, who was the No. 5 overall pick in this year's NBA Draft by the Orlando Magic.

"The things I care about — hustle, attitude, effort, execution, the things that will get you wins when they really count — to me matter more than any category," Cronin said. "So it's a credit to (Bellarmine) coach (Scott) Davenport."

Peyton Watson had a game-high 19 points in 20 minutes off the bench, and Johnny Juzang added 13 for the Bruins (5-0).

UCLA gets a shot at revenge. Are the Bruins ready?

"No," Cronin said. "Absolutely not. The challenge, for me, is us maintaining who we are. If we're just going to be a great team and make shots, we're in deep trouble."

Playing in its first game in four days, UCLA came out missing eight of its first 10 shots. The Bruins' defense responded, forcing Bellarmine to a 3 of 13 start in the first 11 minutes. UCLA went on a 19-2 run with Watson, the freshman from Long Beach, California, atoning for nine of those points

Watson shot 9 of 12 for the game and had four rebounds, easily outpacing his 3.3 points average through four games this season.

"Just a great week of practice, a great week of preparation," Watson said. "The guys just told me to be patient, play my game, don't think about it too much, just come out and play my hardest. That's what I put a lot of emphasis on, just coming out, giving it my all and helping the team win."

David Singleton added 13 points on 5-of-8 shooting for the Bruins, who shot 45.2% despite Juzang (5 of 14), Jaime Jaquez Jr. (3 of 11) and Tyger Campbell (1 of 7) combining to shoot 28.1%.

Bellarmine (0-5) lost in double digits for the fourth time in five games and is coming off consecutive losses against the nation's top two teams. The Knights lost 92-50 at Gonzaga on Friday.

Dylan Penn led Bellarmine with 19 points and seven rebounds, while CJ Fleming had 12 points and made two 3-pointers.

OFFENSIVE GLASS DOMINANCE

The Bruins won the rebounding battle 36-27, but it was the offensive rebounding that made the difference.

UCLA had a 15-5 edge on the offensive glass with eight of them from center Myles Johnson. Five of them came in the second half.

The Bruins had three straight offensive rebounds on one possession that ended with Singletary's layup to push the UCLA lead to 54-32 with 14:14 remaining. UCLA had 24 offensive rebounds in Wednesday's 98-63 win over North Florida.

BIG PICTURE

UCLA: The gap in talent was evident with the Bruins despite their shooting struggles, and the defense showed why. UCLA held the Knights to 35.7% in the first half and 1 of 10 from behind the arc, but only 36-25. The Bruins started the second half on a 16-4 run to pull away.

Bellarmine: The "no-dribble" offense has been tested early this season. The Knights have played three teams who made the NCAA Tournament last season (UCLA, Gonzaga, No. 3 Purdue) and one that played in the NIT (Saint Mary's).

And Reich senses it's working again with a team suddenly clicking on all cylinders.

"I could just feel from the guys, I could feel the energy, I could feel the focus. So, this didn't surprise me," he said. "When you can run the football, it makes a huge difference. You've still got to be able to make plays in the pass game and we made a couple today that were significant, but that's the way to run the football."

WHAT'S WORKING

Indy's offensive line. Taylor leads the NFL with 1,122 yards rushing, 13 TD runs and 15 total touchdowns while averaging 5.8 yards per carry. He couldn't produce those numbers without a strong offensive line, which is playing at its traditionally high standard after a rash of early-season injuries.

WHAT NEEDS HELP

Tight end contributions. It may be a picky point after a completely dominant game, but the Colts have leaned so heavily on Taylor and receiver Michael Pittman Jr. recently the tight ends seem like a forgotten component in the passing game. Expect Reich to make that a focal point over the final six games.

STOCK UP

Indy's defense. While the game-changing turnover actually came on a kickoff return, it goes down as a defensive takeaway. The Colts have taken over the league lead in turnover margin (plus-15) and takeaways (25) and at this pace of 2.27 per game, their stated goal of 40 turnovers is within reach.

STOCK DOWN

Rodrigo Blankenship. A hip injury put the kicker on injured reserve following an overtime loss at Baltimore. Indy then signed Michael Badgley, who hasn't missed a kick in those six games. Reich made it clear last week he won't rush back Blankenship and intends, for now, to use Badgley.

INJURIES

For the second straight week, the Colts came out of the game relatively healthy. The biggest concern was three-time All-Pro guard Quenton Nelson, who left in the fourth quarter after aggravating an ankle injury. Reich said Nelson is considered day to day.

KEY NUMBER

30 — Indy has scored at least 30 points in five of its last six games, including 41 against the league's No. 2 scoring defense. Reich also put 41 points on the scoreboard in that historic comeback against the Houston Oilers.

NEXT STEPS

After beating one of last season's final four teams, the Colts face another with Tom Brady and defending world champion Tampa Bay coming to town. Brady has had much success in Indianapolis during his career, and Indy needs to replicate Sunday's performance to prove the Buffalo victory was no fluke.

BENGALS

WHAT'S WORKING

The defense limited the Raiders to 278 yards, the second time the Bengals held an opponent to fewer than 300 yards in a game. It was the third-lowest total for Las Vegas this season. Carr was sacked twice, and Cincinnati cornerback Eli Apple intercepted him in the fourth quarter. Two plays after Apple's pick, Mixon broke for a 20-yard TD that put the game out of reach. The Raiders were just 1 for 7 on third down.

WHAT NEEDS HELP

Burrow wasn't sharp. His 148 passing yards were a career low. He forced throws, fumbled on Cincinnati's first possession of the game and was bashed around by the Raiders' pass rushers. He was sacked three times. The fourth-quarter scoring pass to Chase was his first TD toss in eight quarters. After a sack near the end of the first half, he limped off the field favoring his surgically repaired left knee, but apparently is OK.

"Every game is going to be played with a different style," Taylor said. "We knew this was a game we were going to have to run the football. (Burrow) just wants to win, and he doesn't care what it looks like."

STOCK UP

Mixon — and the offensive line — just kept grinding and finally broke the Raiders. After averaging just 2.4 yards on 11 carries in the first half, he pushed it up to 6.5 on 19 carries in the second. His 30 carries were a season high.

"We were definitely fortunate enough to wear guys down," Mixon said, "and big runs started to come."

STOCK DOWN

Besides Chase's slick TD catch, Bengals receivers were lacking in big plays. Tyler Boyd had six catches for 49 yards, Chase had three for 32, and Tee Higgins had two for 15. The longest gainer was a 17-yard reception by Chase.

KEY NUMBER

1 — Number of Bengals' penalties against the Raiders.

NEXT STEPS

The Bengals put themselves right back in the AFC North race. Five of their last seven games are at home, and they play all three AFC North rivals again, starting with the Steelers at Paul Brown Stadium on Sunday.

"I'm really proud of them to go out after a bye, get a big road win and come back and get ready for a big-time divisional game at our house," Taylor said.

SEATTLE — Kianna Smith and Liz Dixon each scored 13 points for No. 10 Louisville, which beat Washington 61-53 on Saturday.

The Cardinals (3-1) led by as much as 16 late in the third quarter, but had to hold off a late charge by the Huskies to win their third straight.

"We have to put a four-quarter game together," Louisville coach Jeff Walz said. "I thought for three quarters we were really, really good and then we kind of got away from what we were doing to build that lead."

Haley Van Dyke scored 15 points and had seven rebounds for Washington (2-1), and Alexis Whitfield came off the bench for 10 points.

Hailey Van Lith made a pair of free throws with 2:42 left to stop the Huskies' 11-0 run that had cut Louisville's lead to 54-51.

Emily Engstler then hit a turnaround jumper with 1:52 left for a 58-51 lead that Washington couldn't erase. Van Lith finished with 11 points, three assists and no turnovers.

"I thought Emily Engstler came up with a huge, huge bucket and then some big rebounds on the offensive boards," Walz said. "She came up with one, Liz got one ... and then we were finally able to convert. I mean, we just were bad there in the fourth quarter offensively. I'm not sure if seven is the least amount of points we've scored in a quarter in my 15 years, but it's close."

The Cardinals trailed by five early because of cold shooting, missing 12 of their first 18 shots and were 0 of 3 from the 3-point line.

But Louisville forced five of Washington's 14 first-half turnovers over less than 3 minutes.

Then Smith hit the team's first 3 with 4:10 left in the half to break a 19-all tie and start a 14-4 run.

Washington cut it to eight in the third, but Louisville surged ahead behind timely baskets from Smith and Dixon to lead 52-36 with 3:10 to go. But the Huskies rallied to cut the lead to 54-51 with 3:05 left. Mykasa Robinson and Smith hit three free throws to finish the game.

"I'm so proud of our kids," Washington coach Tina Langley said. "I think these young women have worked incredibly hard. Just so selfless. They'll play any position, do anything we ask. I can't tell you how many players I had playing out of position today."

BIG PICTURE

Louisville: Coach Jeff Walz improved to 14-4 against the Pac-12, but his team hasn't had much fun against the conference this year after starting the season with a 61-59 overtime loss to No. 11 Arizona.

Washington: Until new coach Tara Langley finds a solution at point guard, something that may not happen this season, the turnovers will continue to cost Washington games. Louisville scored 17 points off turnovers.

Howard's triple-double leads Kentucky women, 92-47

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LEXINGTON — Rhyne Howard had the third triple-double in Kentucky history to lead the 19th-ranked Wildcats to a 92-47 win over Winthrop on Sunday.

Howard scored 22 points with 10 rebounds and 10 assists — plus five steals — for the first UK triple-double since Makayla Epps (21-11-12) on Nov. 18, 2015, as the Wildcats (3-1) bounced back from a loss at top 10 Indiana.

Dre'una Edwards added 20 points and Robyn Benton 14 among the five Kentucky players in double figures.

Jaelyn Royal scored 11 to lead Winthrop (0-4). Myra Strickland had 10.

An 11-0 run late in the first quarter, with five different payers scoring, put Kentucky up 25-6.

Winthrop got within 11 by the end of the quarter but early in the second a 16-0 run wrapped it up.

Kentucky scored 36 points off 28 Winthrop turnovers.

South Carolina women beat No. 2 UConn, solidify top spot

BY DOUG FEINBERG
AP BASKETBALL WRITER

PARADISE ISLAND, Bahamas — Dawn Staley's top-ranked South Carolina Gamecocks turned up their defense in the fourth quarter to turn away UConn.

Aliyah Boston had 22 points and 15 rebounds and the Gamecocks held the No. 2 Huskies to three points in the final 10 minutes of a 73-57 victory in the championship game of the inaugural Battle 4 Atlantis tournament.

"Our players are determined. They are resilient," said Staley, South Carolina's Hall of Fame coach. "We knew exactly what we had to do especially on the defensive side of the ball. We had to disrupt. UConn's a team that's a well-oiled machine. If you allow them to run their stuff, they've made teams look stupid. We had the personnel to disrupt and force them into contested shots."

This was the 61st meeting between the top two teams in The Associated Press women's college basketball poll and the sixth time it has happened in November. The No. 1 team holds a 38-23 advantage.

The last meeting of the top two teams before Monday was between these same squads back in February. UConn was the No. 2 team and won 63-59 in overtime.

The Gamecocks (6-0) wouldn't let the Huskies (3-1) beat them in the Bahamas, outscoring them 16-3 in the final quarter, setting off a postgame celebration that had South Carolina swaying alongside a Bahamian dance group.

Trailing 52-50 late in the third quarter, South Carolina cranked up its defense, holding UConn without a field goal for 7:38 spanning the final two periods. By the time Evina Westbrook hit a 3-pointer from the wing with 5 minutes left — UConn's only points of the fourth — the Huskies trailed 63-57.

They got no closer. Destiny Littleton quickly answered with a 3 on the other end to restore the comfortable margin. She had hit a 3-pointer late in the third period to give the Gamecocks a 57-54 advantage heading into the fourth.

"Our defense did a superb job for 40 minutes," Staley said. "You didn't see the impact in the first half. It's in the third and fourth quarters when you start feeling what our defense does to teams."

Paige Bueckers, UConn's sophomore sensation, had 19 points to lead the Huskies, who had won nine of the 10 previous meetings between the schools.

With the championship game taking place around the same time the poll is released each Monday, the AP decided to delay the poll for a day so it would reflect the outcome — the second time since the poll began in 1976 that it has been delayed.

The only other time also involved UConn.

The second-ranked Huskies were playing No. 1 Tennessee on Jan. 16, 1995, in the first meeting of their storied rivalry.

The Huskies pulled off the upset victory and moved to No. 1 for the first time in school history.

UConn couldn't do it again on Monday.

"I liked 30 minutes of what we did; it was great," said Huskies coach Geno Auriemma, also a Hall of Famer. "We got tired; our transition game was great in the first half."

It was an entertaining first half played at the Atlantis Resort inside a converted ballroom that had a spirited crowd supporting both teams. South Carolina jumped out to a 6-0 lead before UConn went on a 20-2 run sparked by senior center Olivia Nelson-Ododa.

She had two blocks and drew an offensive foul in the span of a minute during the burst. The Huskies, who once were up by 13, led only 20-14 after one quarter.

The defensive intensity continued in the second quarter as the Gamecocks were able to whittle down their deficit to 36-33 at the half.

They continued to chip away in the third quarter before the big run that gave them control of the game.

This was the first of two meetings this season between these teams.

The Huskies will visit South Carolina on Jan. 27. Both teams expect to be much improved by the second matchup.

In "the next four months, the team you saw today could be a completely different team. That's every coach's hope and prayer," Auriemma said. "Our team can keep changing every week. Use every experience to build on. ... This team, this team's got some work to do if that's going to happen. We're going to have to work really, really hard for that to happen."

BOARD DOMINANCE

South Carolina outrebounded UConn 42-25, including grabbing 19 offensive boards.

BIG PICTURE

South Carolina: This was the third win over a top-10 team for the Gamecocks this season. They've already beat No. 5 North Carolina State and ninth-ranked Oregon.

UConn: The Huskies fell short because they couldn't get enough offense to help Bueckers.

BY THE NUMBERS

UConn has been involved in 26 of the 1-vs-2 games and has gone 22-4 in those contests, winning the previous nine before Monday's loss.

Sabonis, Brogdon pour it on in Pacers' rout of Bulls

BY CASEY DROTTAR
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO — Domantas Sabonis scored 21 points, Malcolm Brogdon added 16 more, and the Indiana Pacers routed the Chicago Bulls 109-77 on Monday night.

Myles Turner also scored 12 points and hauled in 10 rebounds in Indiana's second straight win.

"It feels like we're getting our footing," Pacers coach Rick Carlisle said. "We're a team that's not going to get any free lunch from anybody. We've got to embrace that fact, and it's got to be something that brings us closer and closer together."

DeMar DeRozan led the Bulls with 18 points, while Zach LaVine scored 17 — just the second time this season he was held to fewer than 20 points.

It was a one-sided affair for much of the night, with Indiana stretching its lead to as many as 35 points in the fourth. Chicago had a few offensive spurts, but ended up with 36.5% shooting for the game. The Bulls played their reserves for the entire final frame.

The Pacers came out of the gate firing on all cylinders offensively, opening with a 26-9 run. Justin Holiday and Caris LeVert scored six points apiece within the first four minutes.

"Beating a team that's high-powered and doing well is big for us," Holiday said. "We've been trying to figure out how we can play a full 48 minutes. Our main goal coming in is to play together and play hard. Being able to do that tonight and win it the way we did, it's good for our team to see that, when we play that way, it works."

Indiana led 67-46 at halftime thanks to a strong effort on the glass, outrebounding the Bulls 28-16 in the first two quarters. DeRozan helped fuel a 10-3 run for Chicago to cut the second-quarter deficit to eight, but key baskets from Brogdon and Kelan Martin down the stretch pushed the Pacers' advantage to 21 points at the break.

Chicago, playing on the second night of a back-to-back, looked sluggish early, going 7 of 22 from the floor in the first quarter, including just 1 of 7 3-pointers.

"We missed some good looks," Bulls coach Billy Donovan said. "As the game started to get into double figures, we got very, very stagnant. The ball didn't move well enough, and we didn't generate enough for each other."

HELP NEEDED

DeRozan and LaVine entered the game as the NBA's fourth and fifth leading scorers, respectively. But the two stars received little help on offense Monday, with the Bulls' three other starters combining for 10 points total. Lonzo Ball missed all seven shots.

LeBron suspended 1 game, Stewart 2 games, for altercation

BY TIM REYNOLDS
AP BASKETBALL WRITER

LeBron James of the Los Angeles Lakers has been suspended for one game and Detroit's Isaiah Stewart was suspended two games for their roles in an ugly incident during Sunday's Lakers-Pistons game.

The NBA announced the suspensions Monday, and both will affect games on Tuesday. James will not play when the Lakers visit Madison Square Garden to play the New York Knicks. Stewart will miss the Pistons' home game against Miami on Tuesday and their game Wednesday at Milwaukee.

James will forfeit about $284,000 in salary, while Stewart will lose about $45,000. It is the first suspension in the 19-year career of James, who has won four NBA titles with three teams.

The Lakers and Pistons meet again Sunday in Los Angeles, and James and Stewart will both be eligible to play.

Stewart, the NBA said, was disciplined for "escalating an on-court altercation by repeatedly and aggressively pursuing ... James in an unsportsmanlike manner." James merited the suspension "for recklessly hitting Stewart in the face and initiating an on-court altercation," the NBA said.

The incident happened in the third quarter, starting when James and Stewart were jostling for position during a free throw. Their arms appeared to get intertwined and James swung his elbow, making contact with Stewart, who quickly had blood streaming from above his eye. James, it appeared, attempted to defuse the situation after realizing he'd made contact with Stewart and drawn blood.

It didn't take long for most of the players from both teams — along with the referees, coaches and security personnel — to join the fray and try to keep James and Stewart separated. Within 25 seconds of the contact being made by James, there were at least 25 people on the floor. Referee Phenizee Ransom attached himself to James.

Cooler heads seemed to prevail, for a moment. Stewart was guided away from the spot where the contact occurred by teammates and coaches, though he appeared to become more incensed along the way. He then tried to double back — on multiple occasions — and run toward James. A number of people again blocked his path and made sure the incident didn't get uglier.

Pistons coach Dwane Casey said Stewart needed eight stitches to close the wound, adding that he did not think what Stewart did in reaction to the play merited a suspension.

"His eye got cracked all the way open. He was upset for a reason," Casey said.

Stewart eventually left the floor, seeming to sprint again as he did so, and there was concern that he would try to head back toward the floor through another entry tunnel. Pistons guard Cory Joseph even headed toward that tunnel, just in case — and with the blessing of referee Scott Foster, the game's crew chief.

"After Isaiah Stewart left the court, Cory was anticipating he may come around the back of (the) house and enter the Laker bench from the opposite side," Foster told a pool reporter after the game. "So, he was going to intercept him. I actually told Cory that would be good."

Stewart was assessed two technical fouls, James was assessed a Flagrant Foul Penalty 2, and both players were ejected.
